PITTSBURG STEEL HAS RECORD MONTH

Supt. Morgan Reports An Exceptionally Big Run For December

MILLS ARE RESUMING

For the past few months, few mills of the country have been announcing record outputs on account of the industrial depression. However the month of December has proven the greatest month in the operation of the blast furnace of the Pittsburg Steel company at Monessen.

Supt. C. J. Morgan has just announced that on December 26, the furnace produced 781 gross tons of steel. On December 20 there were 752 gross tons of steel produced and for the entire month the record of the world was sustained in the output of 21,000 tons For the entire week of December 21, this furnace produced 5092 tons. The capacity of the furnace is 500 tons daily.

At present the company is operating but one of the large furnaces, the capacity being sufficient to take care of the demand for steel for all departments of the big mill. The furnaces are built over the most modern pattern, being electrically operated. The electricity is made from the waste gasses of the furnace.

Indications are that the Pittsburg Steel plant at Monessen will be operated steadily It is believed that the entire plant will be in operation by February 1. 1915. A number of orders have already been received for February.

Monday morning No 2 rod mill and No. 2 wire mill, the nail mill and the fence mill resumed operations. This morning the galvanizing department resumed operations. following the temporary shut down during the holidays.

HIGHWAYMEN CONFESSES TO ROBBERY

Many Cases Are Disposed of by the Court Monday Morning

George Ross, a young Italian of Monongahela, was given a minimum of four years and a maximum of ten years in the Western penitentiary Monday by the court upon his plea of guilty to highway robbery. The defendant told a frank story as to the committing of the crime. He endeavored though to put the blame on Tony Adams, whom he called his "buddy." He said the committing of the crime was suggested by Adams and that Adams furnished the revolver. Adams' story was that he was forced to commit the robbery by Ross, whom he said held a gun over him while he, Adams, went through the pockets of John Mosonetz of Charleroi. The offense was committed near Catsburg and Mosonetz was relieved of about $82. The money was divided by Ross and Adams. Ross' story was that the three had been playing pool at Monongahela. On the way home he said Adams told him that Mosentez had some money on him. Adams suggested he said that they holr up Mosonetz. He said Adams turned over a revolver to him and when near Catsburg he covered Mosonetz with the gun and Adams went through Mosonetz's pockets. The district attorney said he investigated the case and the prosecutor's story was that Ross forced Adams to rob Mosonetz. Adams is out on bail. He is crippled, having only one leg.

John Svanson entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery. The prosecutor was Joseph Johnson. The two men had a fight in a Donora saloon.

ALUMNI WINS OPENING GAME FROM REGULARS

W. R. Gaut Gives Bronze Tablet and Trophy Case to School

SCORE IS 40 TO 15

Although the Charleroi high school team showed that there was some splendid material for a championship team in school this year the alumni stars won the opening game of the season Monday nigh by the score of 40 to 15. The high school did not play Monday night in a way that will win the valley championship, but it is believed that they can be worked into a winning aggregation.

The first point in Monday night's game was scored by Charles Lowstuter of the high school team. Wagner and Wilson played a star game for the alumni. C. Lowstuter played the game for the high school. A feature of the game was Ryland's rainbow jersey.

Preceeding the game H. J. Booth presented the high school with the bronze tablet and trophy case which was given by W. R. Gaut to the high school in commeroration of the championship of last year, and of the victory over Monongahela. Mr. Booth said in part, "It is always customary to erect tablets to the brave, so we have here a bronze tablet erected in honor of the five brave boys who won the championship game." Three cheers were given by the audience for Mr. Gaut.

The trophy case contains the basket ball won in the Charleroi-Monongahela game. A copy of the Charleroi Mail for March 27, 1914, which gives an acount of the game and the telegram, received from Governor J. K. Tener, congratulating the team on their victory.

The inscription on the bronze tablet is as follows: "Ball won In Champinship game, Tree's gymnasium, March 26, 1914. Charleroi 36 Monongahela 33. Valley and county championship 1913-1914. John R. TROUBLES.

Of course you think your troubles are real and your worries have a solid basis. You wouldn't go around with a long face, and you wouldn't be so much disturbed over trifles which will not last long, nor would you be unduly downcast over possibilities which will not result so very disastrously, after all. But let's think about it a little says the Uniontown Herald.

Last year you had troubles and worries. They were just as real and just as depressing as those which you now bear. The outlook was just as gloomy and the hope was just as invincible. But can you remember your pet trouble or your dearest worry of last year? Of course, you cannot. And next year you will not be able to remember just what it was that now fills your breast with woe.

Getting a little perspective on the present and future from this little glimpse at the past, isn't it about time to cease bothering about what cannot be helped, to set about to find a remedy for what can be mended, and to look more on the bright side? No matter what your cares, your joys outweigh them. Quit looking so steadily at your trials and you will be surprised after a while when you take an indifferent glance at them to find that they have shrunk to such a small part of their former selves. And looking at your delights you will find that they are a wonderful rest for the eyes. Most of your troubles have never happened.

M'GUFFEY'S THIRD READER.

For years the New McGuffey third Reader, and for years before that McGuffey's Alternate Second Reader has told the story of "A Plucky Boy" who, seeing his widowed mother sorrowing in poverty, get a $4-a-week job as a cash-boy to help out. An earlier and imperfectly instructed generation doubtless assumed that this tale inculcated in young and impressionable minds Thrift, Industry and Filial Devotion, says the New York World.

That was before the Uplift. A member of the National Child-Labor Committee recently reproduced this story in the Survey, questioning the wisdom of making a school example of "such an extreme case of child labor" in a tale "so much at variance with modern ideas to to labor conditions and relief." Little Willie's mother should have a widow's pension and Willie himself should not work even after school until he is sixteen.

But this shocking tale is no longer to corrupt the youth of the land with the suggestion that even a six-year-old may help Mother. The American Book company—alas! apparently there is no McGuffey!—has seen a great light and hereafter the page desecrated by the recital of conduct so abhorrent to all right-thinking persons will be redeemed by a tale called "What the Clock Said."

Probably the astonished clock said, "It does beat all—how times—do change!"

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Love is the greatest thing in the world. Whether this is or is not an incontrovertible statement, let it pass for the sake of the story, says an exchange. The principle has been adopted in the rearing of her four-year-old daughter by a believer in what a current magazine terms "one of these modern fancy religions."

Beatrice, who insists that her name really is "Dorothea" (just because she must let everything and everybody. For example, when she had a fit of temper the other day and took it out on a sound kick at the bureau, her mother made her apologize to the abused furniture and say: "I love you bureau."

Shortly afterward another outburst brought another correction, in which her mother told her that whenever she was tempted to be naughty she must say: "Get thee behind me, Satan." This seemed to work pretty well for a time or two, but later in the day the fond parent was reduced to tears by hearing Beatrice exclaim with all vitriolic intensity of her small person:

"Git around here you Old Scratch, you!"

The conductor was not tactful. He might have made a closer investigation before doing what he did. He should have seen that the young people were only lovers and withal a trifle timid. Otherwise, perhaps it all would not have been so distressing, says an exchange.

He discovered the nursing bottle in the seat just after they had arisen to leave the car by the front exit. Leaving his place on the rear platform, he picked up the bottle and started after them. He caught them before the car had stopped at their street corner.

He tapped the young man on the shoulder, "Beg pardon, sir," he asked, "but did you leave something?"

"Leave what?" began the young man as he turned. Then his eyes fell on what the conductor was extending him. So did those of the girl with him. His face went crimson; likewise hers.

"N-n-n-o," he stammered, "we didn't leave that."

Both went from the car with precipitation as it came to a standstill, but not soon enough to miss the ripple of laughter from the passengers.

Shopping.

A lady ambles to a store
To buy a spool of thread
At first she looks at hats galore.
Then carving knives and bread.

From there she travels to the aisle
Where davenports are kept.
And then she lingers for a while
Around the ribbon dep't.

She looks at frying-pans and lace.
Inspects the latest books.
She prices lotions for the face
And linen goods and hooks.

And when she's canvassed all the joints.
And clerks are nearly dead.
She brings the matter to a point,
And buys a spool of thread.

SETBACK FOR THE OPTIMIST

According to Pessimist, He Had Failed Utterly to See Things in Their Proper Light.

"Look at that list of you?" exclaimed the cheerful real estate man. "In this paper there is a record of eighty-seven marriage licenses issued yesterday."

"Well what of it?" said his partner, the pessimist of the firm.

"What of it?" echoed the other. "Can't you see? Those eighty-seven marriage licenses mean eighty-seven marriages. The eighty-seven marriages will lead to eighty-seven inquiries for houses, flats, or at least eligible apartments. It's bound to stimulate business in our line and we'll get our share."

"That doesn't follow at all. Those eighty-seven licenses represent 174 persons, don't they?"

"Yes."

"Probably all adults?"

"Undoubtedly. What of it?"

"Nothing," growled the pessimist; "except that 174 persons who have hitherto occupied 174 apartments will hereafter occupy eighty-seven, and that ain't helping our business any. You make me tired."

Gasometer Signs for Aviators.

Mr. W. J. Lugard, representing the Tourist club of Holland, recently made an interesting proposal at a meeting of the congress of the League of International Touring associations, says London Answers.

Aviators experience much difficulty in ascertaining their whereabouts when flying over towns and villages at a considerable height, and Mr. Lugard suggested that at the top of every gasometer a large arrow should be painted with the tip pointing north. His scheme includes the use of index letters and reference numbers. For example, if SX were index letters representing Sussex, and Horsham were No. 8 on the list of towns in that county, the local gasometer would be marked SSX.

Putting Them "In Right."

A Canadian who had been on a pleasure jaunt to New York tells of an incident of Gotham's amusement life. He went to the Carnegie lyceum. It's a big place with several different entertainments going on at the same time in various parts of the building. On this particular day they had moving pictures of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" on the ground floor and an orchestra concert upstairs. Highbrow music-lovers and patrons of the movies would have got all mixed up in looking for their respective places of entertainment if it had not been for a big-voiced negro porter who stood at the stairs to announce in stentorian tones: "Dis way to de Symphony concert. Less Miserubble downstairs."

Wireless Telephone in Europe.

That the wireless telephone has at last been developed to such a stage that it is a practical means of long-distance communication was demonstrated recently when a wireless-telephone conversation was transmitted from London to Berlin, a distance of about 600 miles, by means of Marconi transmitting and receiving instruments. This feat far surpasses anything that has been done heretofore, the latest success along this line having been the establishment of wireless-telephone communication between Philadelphia and New York city.—Popular Mechanics.

Photographs by Wire.

A photograph in London can be reproduced in Paris on the same principle as a telegram within the space of 40 minutes. This has already been achieved by the Photo-Telegraph Cable company and a practical demonstration was given recently to experts and journalists at the Hotel Cecil.

By means of the invention, the "Telectograph," a newspaper, a theater, a private person, can receive in a few minutes from a place hundreds of miles away a pictorial representation of current events. Police authorities also will be able to circulate the photographs of wanted criminals in several towns with lightning swiftness, whilst clubmen will be able to see faithful representations of people "in the news," just as now they are able to read the news itself on the "tickers."

Novel Burglar Alarm.

A novel burglar alarm has been placed on the market in Germany, composed of a small metal disk, circular in shape, which may easily be carried in the vest pocket. It is so arranged that a detonating cap may be inserted, and so loaded it becomes a terror to sneak thieves. Suppose a traveler is staying in a strange hotel and finds that he cannot lock his door. He places a chair against the door and slips the disk under one of its legs. Should anyone attempt to enter the room the chair is forced out of position, the disk flies open and the cap explodes, awakening the sleeper. The disk may be used under baggage, in purses, under bicycle or automobile tires and in many other ways.

Oldest College Graduate.

Rev. John Merrick of York, Pa., is believed to be not only the oldest graduate of Rutgers college, but the oldest college graduate. He was graduated at Rutgers in 1834. His age is one hundred and one, and at the commencement the other day a letter from him was read, in which it was said: "Former things have passed away, but it brings joy into my aged life to know that you are still going forward with a great and good work among new generations."

WAR BULLETINS

Washington. D. C., Dec. 29—The United States Government Monday dispatched a long note to Great Britian, insisting upon early improvement in the treatment of American commerce by the British fleet. It gave warning that much feeling had been aroused in this country, and that public criticism was general over unwarranted interference with legitimate foreign trade of the United States. This document was the strongest that has ever been sent any of the belligerents since the outbreak of the war. It was cabled to Ambassador Page to be formerly presented to Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary. The warning is friendly but frank. The document points out that the action of the British fleet has caused a depression in industries in the United States.

London, Dec. 29.—The battle lines in the east and west have undergone only small changes in the past few days. The Germans have captured a section of trenches near Hollebeke, south of Ypresz but gave up trenches on the first line to the extent of 800 or 900 yards in the Leng region. Reports of the number of wounded that both armies are sending back from the lines in Belgium would seem to indicate that the fighting Christmas was the hardest of the past month. Belgians as a result of sapping captured nearly 2000 Germans in five days. The German attempts to take Warsaw have failed. English newspapers are jubilant over the success of the raids by their cruisers and seaplanes on Cuxhaven. It is argued by some that if Cuxhaven can thus be attacked why not other cities?

Washington, D. C., Dec 29.—The German government has formerly notified the state department that American consuls in Belgium must be acceptable to the German military authorities, and that it is desirable that some of the consuls be withdrawn for the present at least. Secretary Bryan declined to give out anything on the matter Monday.

FABLE DEALING WITH ADVICE

Will Be Interesting Alike to Those Who Offer and Those Who Seek Guidance.

Once, on a day when many problems rose up and encompassed me about as high walls my friend came to me with admonition in his eyes and advice on his tongue.

And, because of the love that was between us, I hearkened unto the words of my friend and I did as he advised. But his advice brought me no good thing. Nay, rather it led me deeper into my prison of questionings. And when I saw that my troubles were multiplied upon me I sought out my friend again to ask him why this should be. And I said:

"Lo! All that thou badest me do I have done, yet am I not released from my difficulty—rather is trouble multiplied upon me!"

And my friend lost patience with me and laughed me to scorn and said:

"If thou knewest that what I said would bring thee to no good end, why wast thou obedient to my voice? I advised for thy good—but thy life I cannot make for thee."

And at first I was wroth with my friend, but later, when I had lain still a long time with my thought, I was thankful unto him.

For I said, "Henceforth I will not ask advice only of my own mind, and the soul within me shall be a counseler."

And when I had sought the advice of my mind and taken counsel with mine own soul, I saw a path between the walls and knew where my feet should tread. And by that path I began to climb from my prison.

Then came other friends with advice on their tongues and cried unto me.

"Not this way! Not this way!"

But I hearkened not unto them, for I felt that I was destined to be mine own deliverer. And at last there came a day when the walls of my prison lay below me and when I could smile upon my friends and say.

"Lo, it was the right path!"

But my friends only smiled back at me with right good will and said:

"You have had good luck. We are glad."—Marguerite Wilkinson.

TREE AGRICULTURE NOT NEW

Immense Possibilities When the Subject Has Been Thoroughly and Scientifically Sifted.

The modern conception of "tree agriculture" is new—it is only a few years since men began to discuss the possibility of substituting permanent trees for annual seed-bearing grains as the world's food supply. But the fact of tree agriculture is very old, and few who live in northern lands have any idea how far it has progressed in the hot regions.

There are some 60,000,000 cocoanut trees in the island of Ceylon, valued at nearly $200,000,000. They furnish much of the food supply of the inhabitants. The date palms of the Pacific are other examples of tropical fruit trees; and the chestnuts, carobs and olives of southern Europe show something of what can be done in cooler climates.

In the grasp of modern science, trees are as pliant as animals. When we consider what has been accomplished in animal breeding in the last two centuries, we get some idea of tree farming as our descendants may practice it 200 years hence.

Wallachs in History.

The Wallachs have a large legendary literature, ballads of past history, folklore, fireside tales and songs. To this subject Lazar devotes one of the most interesting chapters in the book. He has not aimed at presenting anything like a complete record, but his specimens show what a wealth of material here awaits investigation and record before the encroachments of newer culture have destroyed this invaluable record of the life of an interesting folk. Material of this sort now stands upon a high plane. It is recognized that it is worthy of studious attention as preserving records of the life of a people such as are lacking to the aridity of chronicles and documents of history.

Traits of British Troops.

When discussing the peninsular campaign with John Wilson Croker Wellington told him that "the national character of the three kingdoms was strongly marked in my army. I found the English regiments always in the best humor when we were well supplied with beef; the Irish when we were in the wine countries, and the Scotch when the dollars for pay came up. This looks like an epigram, but I assure you it was a fact, and quite perceptible. But we managed to reconcile all their tempers, and I venture to say that in our later campaigns, and especially when we crossed the Pyrenees, there never was an army in the world in better spirits, better order or better discipline."

Pythagoras Didn't Know.

Everybody has puzzled over the impression that what he is doing or seeing or hearing he has done or seen or heard before. Professor Bergson, in a lecture in Edinburgh, explained the phenomenon. It is due to psychasthenia, and answers to the name of paramnesia. What happens is that "an insufficiency of psychical impetus causes our attention continually to flag and revive again, so that we continually feel ourselves simultaneously in the past and in the present in memory and in perception."
